Our Rural Customer Charter

Our Rural Customer Charter states our obligations under the Water Act 1989 and your rights as a customer receiving a regulated water supply.

It applies to GMMWater's domestic and stock, irrigation and diversion services (including groundwater), unless specifically exempted by this Rural Customer Charter or by a decision of the Essential Services Commission (ESC).

This is a summary of our Rural Customer Charter and is for GMMWater rural customers only. A full copy is available to customers upon request or through our website at www.gmmwater.org.au.

Our services

The total region serviced by GMMWater covers approximately 6.2 million hectares.

We provide water supply services to approximately 52,000 urban customers living in 71 towns throughout the region. Environmental services are provided to 24 of these towns.

Services provided to our 11,000 rural customers include domestic and stock water supplied by pipeline and irrigation supply to about 3,000 hectares. GMMWater also supplies bulk water to 83 rural customers across the region, typically for intensive agricultural activities such as poultry farms, piggeries and commercial feedlots.

Rural services also include groundwater management, river diversions and support of key regional catchment and environmental management strategies. We manage eight bulk water supply reservoirs, including recreational access to these reservoirs.
